About the topic

Business owners, company directors and professionals must be mindful of the risks associated with owning and/or managing commercial enterprises. They should also seek to obtain the optimal value from their existing asset portfolio. Using a case study approach, this seminar focuses on the options for developing a viable long term asset protection strategy and examines the legal and tax implications.

Speakers

David O'Beirne,
Eversheds O'Donnell Sweeney

David is Partner and Head of the Corporate Department of Eversheds O'Donnell Sweeney since 2002 and previously was Managing Partner of the firm from 1997 to 2002.

David will focus on the legal options available to achieve the optimum asset protection position in a variety of circumstances and against the backdrop of ever increasing pressures and challenges facing enterprises and individuals.

Mary Nyhan, FGS

Mary was appointed a Tax Partner in FGS in January 2008. She is a Chartered Accountant and an Associate Member of the Irish Taxation Institute.

Mary will focus on tax strategies to be adopted now in order to protect assets in the future that are currently held by corporates, business owners and other individuals. Mary will also advise on opportunities to effectively manage value in this high tax environment. She will provide advice on exit strategies for tax-based and other investments. Her advice will focus on decisive actions required in light of the recommendations of the recent Commission on Taxation Report and the looming December Budget.
